Helen Beck, Rachel Berney, Brian Kirk, Ken P. Yocom. 2024. Building equity into public park and recreation service investment: A review of public agency approaches. Landscape and Urban Planning (1) July. DOI:10.1016/j.landurbplan.2024.105069 Corpus ID: 268995178

In recent decades, academic and professional research has increased understanding of the importance of city and landscape planners engaging with social and environmental justice issues, including contemporary inequities inherent in the planning, distribution, use, and access of public green and open spaces. However, there is a gap between this research centering equity and the planning, development, and implementation rate demonstrated by public agencies. In this article, authors examine examples of emerging practice in the public park and recreation sector to understand the strategies and approaches public agencies are taking to provide equitable park and recreation systems.
