

DEPARTMENT OF URBAN DESIGN AND PLANNING
University of Washington

CRITERIA FOR VISITING SCHOLARS

- 1. Applicants must propose a plan of research that includes discussion of how the Urban Design and Planning Department at the UW would benefit from their work, and how this research would benefit by being pursued here. Priority will be given to candidates whose proposed research relates to the interests of one or more planning faculty members, and applications will be reviewed together once each quarter.
- 2. Applicants must have a faculty sponsor in the Urban Design and Planning Department, preferably a faculty member whose area of expertise is in line with that of the applicant and who is willing and agrees to “host” the faculty member.
- 3. Once accepted, the visiting scholar will be expected to offer at least one Department-wide presentation on their research work in English, and two presentations to students in classes as appropriate. ***

Desired but not required

- 4. Successful applicants will have access to email and the library for a modest fee. Please note that in the absence of available office space, the Department is not committed to providing individual office space for the visiting scholars.
- 5. Priority will be given to visiting scholars whose research would further on-going collaborative relationships in the form of research or exchanges involving students or faculty, or the prospect of these kinds of relationships.
- 6. Priority will be given to visiting scholars whose research will result in publications, and these publications should acknowledge the author’s visit with us. The visitor will need to adhere to all of the intellectual property agreements of the University of Washington.
